There Are Great Reductions in the Shoe Department.

Our shoe stocks, we find after inventory, are entirely too heavy, and we are going to make one strenuous effort to reduce them. Reducing the price is, to our notion, the best way of reducing the stock. Every pair of shoes has been gone over carefully and marked down in the most judicious way, 20% less than the original price. We defy any competition to show a better line of shoes, for men, women, boys and girls than the ones our Company stores have on hand. They are all made according to our specifications; every pair guaranteed to us by the makers, and we in turn, guarantee them to our customers. If not satisfactory, a new pair awaits you or we will refund your money, if you prefer.

SECOND WEEK OF THE SCHENK TRIAL.

Boyer was called again when he tried to bring out reference to testimony in the Kline divorce suit.

"For three years after my husband left me my husband left me I was left as I was an invalid," she said. When I recovered I took up nursing and whatever I could to earn an honest living for myself and small son. Then I became a clerk," witness continued, "but I could not stand that, so I became a nurse again."

Witness said she became a detective three years ago. Boyce tried to bring out an incident in a Pittsburgh department store when the manager discharged her because she was under the influence of liquor.

"Never, never," the detective replied quickly. "That is not so, Mr. Boyce."

Mrs. Kline told of coming to Wheeling and receiving orders from Dr. Hipp to watch Mrs. Schenk. Boyce referred to the first meeting between Mrs. Schenk and Mrs. Kline at the hospital.

"I was introduced to Mrs. Schenk as the new nurse," witness said. "Mrs. Schenk was very agreeable. We talked about the weather."

Referring to the incident of Mrs. Schenk requesting the nurse to get her husband's keys in the event of Schenk's death, Kline said she had promised and further offered Mrs. Schenk her sympathy.

"Another lie," Boyce shouted. The detective inclined her head but did not answer.

Referring to Mrs. Schenk's arrival at the hospital in response to a message telling her Schenk was worse, the witness declared Mrs. Schenk said, "Every time I hear that I am so glad, I would be the happiest woman in the world if he died."

"You didn't say that yesterday," Boyce declared.

"Didn't I?" the witness asked.

Handing a small, blue-eyed little woman whose feet barely cleared the floor as she sat in the witness chair, smiled her way through the tedium of the cross examination and proved the feature of the Schenk case today.

The witness was Mrs. Kline, the Pittsburgh detective, who donned a nurse's cap and tried to trap Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk in her alleged poisoning plot. For three hours of continual grilling Attorney P. O. Boyce for the defense had developed hardly a sensational.

"How long do you propose to keep this up?" Judge Jordan demanded just before the noon adjournment.

"Several hours," Boyce replied. "It is the defense's program to confuse Mrs. Kline in her testimony. It was without avail. At the outset Prosecutor Hanlan was plainly nervous."

Where There is So Much Smoke

There is Always Some Fire.

When people talk about one thing and keep on talking as they do about the discovery that created so much newspaper comment in Fort Wayne and other cities during the past summer, even though many reports may be exaggerated, there must be some merit in the discovery, and when people spend their money for a thing and then buy more of it, proof of merit becomes so convincing that it becomes the duty of every person in need of Root Juice to do the thing and get a bottle of this much talked of remedy. Root Juice cures rheumatism and enters because it puts the filtering machinery of the body to work and causes them to filter the impurities of the blood. Root Juice cures stomach and bowel troubles because it removes the mucus film and causes a natural flow of digestion fluids. Root Juice is so good for female weakness because it tones and builds the organs that make and filter blood.

Good, rich blood will nourish and strengthen every weak part of the body. Root Juice is sold for one dollar a bottle or three bottles for two dollars and a half at Graham & Co's drug store.

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 16, 1911.

THE FIRE VICTIMS WILL NOT LACK RELIEF.

It must not be supposed, because no parade has been made in the press, that the proper authorities of Connelville have been idle or indifferent to the needs of those stricken by the hand of affliction in the horrible holocaust of last Thursday.

The Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, its Charity Committee and individual citizens of large sympathies have been organizing proper relief measures. One of the reasons why no publicity has been given their plans is their negotiations with certain interests involved in the catastrophe. It is fair to presume that these interests have hesitated, not because they are devoid of charitable disposition, but lest their action may be construed against them in possible forthcoming litigation.

In this matter they will probably follow the advice of their attorneys, but it seems to us that every consideration of justice and humanity will appreciate it not applaud their present generosity.

However, the necessities of the unfortunate victims living and those dependent upon the victims dead will be properly cared for by the great-hearted public regardless of any action which others may take.

THE PASSING FLOOD AND ITS UTILITY.

The recent floods have been more profitable than damaging to this immediate section. The waters have passed without serious destruction of property but with wholesale destruction of the prolific disease germs which have been propagating and multiplying in the low, stagnant and fecund streams.

The flood was just big enough to thoroughly scour out the Youghiogheny river and its tributaries and cleanse them from impurities. It came with menace; it departed with blessing; and it leaves behind some suggestions concerning conservation which are worthy of the serious attention of public.

A BAD CIGAR.

The Bell Top—The Captain sent me over to investigate the brand of cigar you are smoking. He says it's making him sick.

He men and all intelligent citizens.

Year by year, the water conditions of growing towns, especially those of great industrial sections like the Connelville coke region, or that vast workaday known as the means as the Pittsburgh district, become more serious.

The question was lightly treated for years and has not yet advanced much further than speculation. Pennsylvania has made some progress toward reforestation, but it has been stupidly slow. Where millions have been spent annually for less pressing purposes, a few thousands only have been doled out to remedy a condition which must eventually cost millions and which will cost more the longer its effective treatment is neglected.

Reforestation is a slow process. While the trees are growing it may be found necessary to impound a portion of the floods in order to provide a proper summer water supply, and incidentally to prevent property destruction.

In the meantime, a little food now and then will be welcomed.

THE HARNESSING OF OHIOPILE FALLS.

The harnessing of Ohiopile Falls is not a new proposition. It dates back to the days of "Furber and" Stewart, who wanted the Government to build an arsenal there. It has always been regarded as a feasible proposition, though doubts have always been cast upon it, and these doubts together with complications from time to time have conspired to prevent the development.

In the early days, when there was a full head of water in the Youghiogheny river the year around and by the use of tubular the falls could have been made an inland power site. The site lacked capital and demand; later, when Ohiopile was opened to the markets by the construction of a railroad and electrical power was commercially developed, the summer stage of water got so precarious that doubts were expressed as to its efficiency for any extensive operation.

The present promoters, however, have evidently calculated the possibilities of the water supply to a nicety and find them sufficient and are about to utilize them. Their attempt will be watched with interest.

The various interests are getting ready for litigation over the Connelville holocaust. Evidently somebody is expected to pay. The evidence, however, is somewhat contradictory, and judgment should be suspended at least until the facts have been gathered into by the Coroner and his jury.

Scotlands is becoming an Institute town. Why shouldn't the Youghiogheny teachers hold monthly joint institutes in Connelville. They would doubt prove to be fine improvement societies.

The Yough is on a high, but not too high.

Frank Sillone, the Italian who perished in the McCrorey fire, was undoubtedly a hero who lost his life trying to save the lives of others. He leaves a widow in poor circumstances. A special relief fund has been started for him. It deserves the charity of Connelville. Contributions will be received by The Courier and duly acknowledged. Let them be prompt and liberal.

The robbers of fire ruins deserve little sympathy.

The Western Maryland may go to the Monocahela river, but not by way of Uniontown. However, we incline to the belief that if a line is built from Pottsville to Fayette City it will be a better route rather than a Western Maryland line.

In Bullskin township it is considered similar to eat a man a rabbit, but the butchers and grocers in the urban communities are accustomed to it.

The Connelville hospital will have some very useful improvements, which will add to the comfort and possibly the lives of patients.

The Good Roads movement in Fayette county is lying a careful and comprehensive groundwork.

Many grandmothers have six grandchildren, but it's not many grandchildren who have six grandmothers. Connelville has some long-lived people, yet it never made any pretensions to being a health resort.

This is the thermometer's busy season.

The latent fancy drink is the Colera's cocktail. It is composed of Jamaica ginger, alcohol and pop, and it is guaranteed to make a man drunk quicker than any other concoction ever invented by humanity.

IMPROVEMENTS AT HOSPITAL.

A Sun Parlor is Planned Out of the New Appropriation

ASKED BY THE TRUSTEES

An Extra Thousand Dollars Over the Last Appropriation is Wanted For the Institution on the Hill.

Several improvements are planned by the Board of Trustees of the Connecticut State Hospital to be put into effect as soon as the two year multitenance appropriation is received.

Among them is included a sun parlor.
An additional thousand dollars was asked by the board this year as a special appropriation, to be available at once. In talking with Francis Torrence, President of the State Board of Charities, Dr. T. H. White, Secretary of the Board was advised to include the thousand dollars in the total amount asked, which was done, making the amount $21,000, $11,000 of which will be available at once.

Several of the improvements are needed at once, and it is seen now that it will be necessary to have the form changed in securing the allowance, as only $250 will be available every three months under the present arrangement. It is not thought that any trouble will be encountered in having it changed.

The new sun parlor is expected to be built on the south porch of the hospital. It is said that the cost will not be great, as it will merely be a platform of enclosing the sides with glass partitions. Many new surgical instruments are needed and will be secured in the near future if possible. The matter of insurance must also be adjusted.

An artificial respirator is an apparatus that the Board is making plans to purchase. This is made by the Dime gas Pulmotor Oxygen Apparatus Company and costs about $150.

The machine is especially adapted for use in minor accidents but is used wherever it is necessary to use artificial respiration. It consists of a cylinder of oxygen with a pressure of 1,800 pounds to the square inch.
Tubes connect the tank with a rubber mask which fits over the face.

A turn of a small handle sets the machine in operation. The pressure is mechanically reduced and lowered which acts on the lungs in such a manner that air is forced into the air vessels and then drawn out, regularly.
In this manner it is said that it will almost make a dead person breathe.
It is so perfectly built that it can be used on a new born infant without rupturing the air vessels.

to thank those who sent the beautiful

Dunbar Dramatic Talent to Present Play Wednesday and Thursday Evenings.

The St. Aloysius Dramatic Club composed of young ladies and gentlemen of the St. Aloysius Catholic Church at Dunbar, will render one of their most successful plays on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, January 17 and 18, in the church hall.
The play which has been selected by the club is "Out of Bondage," a beautiful southern drama in three acts.
The play is written during the days of slavery and has proved to be most interesting from the beginning.
The members of the club have been rehearsing the play for the past several months and all those who attend will be well repaid for the price of admission which is 50 cents. Between acts speculation will be introduced by Misses Kathryn Korwin, Julia Gneff and Charles Mahoney and William Harlock. The cast of the play is as follows:
Fred Grover, the doctor, Timothy V.
Duffy, Charles Hayden, (Old Nathan)
the doctor's cousin, Alfred H. Hampton; Oscar Danile, a Southern planter, Charles Mahoney; Ford, a Sheriff, Felix McGivern; Fred Miller, a son, Master Edward Hampton; Slah, a slave, William Harlock; Millie Grover, Sister Agnes, Julia Malone; Isadore, Danville's betrothed, Miss Mary Callahan; Priscilla, the doctor's sister, Margaret Jeffries; Harriet, a slave, Beatrice Duffy; Gyp, a slave, Louisa Gneff.
The public is invited to attend and the proceeds will be used toward defraying the expenses of the repairs which are being made to the church buildings.

Road Supervisors Will Meet Here

By-laws were adopted, district meetings set and other important business transacted at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Fayette County Road Supervisors Association in the First National Bank building, Uniontown, Saturday afternoon. The by-laws were identical to the same as those recommended by the speakers at the Good Roads conference held in Uniontown, December 17.

Arrangements have been made for four district meetings in different parts of the county. The meetings will be open to the general public and all are given a cordial invitation to attend. The first will be held in Connecticut Saturday, February 11. Supervisors from the following townships will be asked to give their special attention to that meeting: Connelville, Buckskin, Lower Tyrone, Upper Tyrone, Satick, Dunbar and North Union.

The meeting in Brownsville Saturday, February 25, will include Brown-sville, Luzerne, Menallen, German Redstone and Jefferson townships.
During March conferences will be held at Smithfield and Obiopolis. Men-allen, Georges, Springfield and South Union townships will be centered at Smithfield while Obiopolis will be the meeting place of persons from Steven, Henry Clay, Wharton and Springfield townships.

A SLANDER SUIT

For $2,000 Between Residents of Bullock Township.

Two thousand dollars will be required to repair the damage reputation of James K. Stillman, according to the statement filed Saturday morning wherein he brings suit for damages against Mrs. Margaret Mu-naw, wife of George Munaw. All live in Bullock township.

Stillman avers that Mrs. Munaw charged him with robbery and that her remarks have led him into prosecution. He declares he is not guilty of the crime imputed, but that the story circulated has brought him into disrepute and injured his good name.

According to the statement filed on Saturday, Stillman says Mrs. Mu-naw, in the presence of others, de-

Unclaimed Land Secured by Patent

John Hunter and Henry A. Oster, young men living near Confluence, have surveyed a tract of unsettled land in Henry Clay township and on Saturday the Commonwealth Patent, for 16 acres, arrived from Harrisburg and was recorded in the Recorder's office. The patent was signed by Governor E. S. Stuart and Secretary of Internal Affairs Henry Heick, at Harrisburg, on November 29, 1910.

The patent is the first of its kind recorded for several years. Many land patents are on record bearing dates half a century ago or more, even dating back to the days of George Washington, but that issued to Hunter and Oster is the latest one.

The land is located in the two men in consideration of $10 paid to the Commonwealth. It was surveyed on October 27, 1910, pursuant to a warrant dated October 18, 1910. The land adjoins that originally patented to Zilba Burnworth, Thomas Cole and George Bell, and contains two and eight-tenths perches more than 40 acres. There are several other tracts of unclaimed land in the mountains of Fayette county.

The SKY-MAN

HENRY KITCHELL WEBSTER
ILLUSTRATIONS BY CHAS. W. ROSSER

It's needed. "Not only a supply of food, but of food, too. You remember your father also speaks of having his harder completely stocked for the winter at this time? Well, these fellows weren't expecting any relief. They must have stocked their harder, too—Of course," he went on a moment later, "I realized vaguely all along that there must be stores somewhere here on the land because men were living here, but on the theory that they had abandoned the beach and were living in some undiscovered part of the mainland, our chance of finding these stores was almost, nothing at all."

"You'd Better Take Belt and Holster and All!"

Finding them would be like trying to find Point Barrow in a fog. But you see, if they kept them here in those huts, and then hid them when they caught sight of the yacht, while they may be well hidden, they can't be far away. There wouldn't have been time to move them far, certainly not over the glacier and into the interior there. It must all be hidden in the huts, here on the coast. When we find that hiding place, we shall probably find all the stores we need for the winter."

"Then, I suppose, the next thing for us to do is to go on and find it?"

"Not quite the next thing. Unless we have exceptional luck, we can hardly hope to find it for several days. It may take a fortnight, and we must have some temporary means of support. In the meantime, there is no telling what sort of weather we will have. It's rather late for these beautiful, mild days, I fancy. So, the first thing to do is to build a few huts, and bring in a lot of drift wood and all those birds that were killed that night by flying against the cliff. When we have made this but, impossibly against a wall of ice, we shall have weather, such as we are likely to have at any time, and have accumulated stores of fuel and food for a few days then we'll begin our search. I had better get to work at once. I think I can build this place by myself."

"You go and begin carrying in fire wood, and as many of those ducks and geese and loons as you can find there along the tundra."

She nodded, and turned to leave the hut. "Take the revolver with you," he called after her.

At that she halted abruptly in the doorway. "Why should I have it any more than you?" Then, answering his smile with one of her own, she said: "I suppose a well-trained crew doesn't demand reasons for the captain's orders—only—"

There's a perfectly good reason, I'm working in the shelter, and you in the open. Besides that, I'm stronger and I have my sheath knife. If I were attacked by anything, I could give a better account of myself than you could. You'd better take belt and holster and all, and buckle it right around your waist."

When Philip finally had his fire-pole rebuilt, in a temporary fashion which he thought would serve him better, he stepped outside the hut and looked, first down and then up the shore in search for her, and was disappointed at finding her nowhere in sight.

She must be dreadfully tired, he thought, and with that thought decided to not out to find her. First, however, he transferred the remnants of the fire from the first stove before the hut to his newly constructed hearth, hopped on more wood and noted, with satisfaction, that his makeshift chimney drew well and did not smoke intolerably. He had dinner, clearing the air so fast that the sound of his whistling rose to a scream through his teeth.

Five minutes later he was just a whistling, gliding, sun-bathed speck in the amber air, the thrilling, prizing, whistling air. He had taken to his wings, upon leaving the hut, simply because they offered him the quickest, easiest way of finding Jeanne.

Suddenly he was flying downward, as fast as gravity and his great wings would take him. Drenched with the sweat of a sudden terror, clearing the air so fast that the sound of his whistling rose to a scream through his teeth. Down he started, seaward a little, past the end of the great headland, then with the sudden, great of all his strength, upon one lowered wing, the other flashing high like the stroke of a scimitar, in the curve of the shortest possible arc, he shot downward, pounced, checked, and alighted not far from the girl.

She had been seated upon a broken ledge of rock when he had first caught sight of her. She was in not of getting to her feet when he alighted, not a half dozen paces away.

She had been pale, but her color had come back now in a sudden surge. She was breathing unsteadily and her hands were clasped against her breast. "You—you mustn't fly like that," she said. "If you had been an eagle, the way you wheeled and came running down out of the sky would have terrified me. I shut my eyes in order not to see you killed."

He did not answer her at once, and she, looking intently into his face, went on. "You know it was dangerous. You thought yourself that you were going to be killed. I can see the horror of it in your eyes."

Then he got his breath. "You're safe!" he questioned unawakenly. "You were in danger, sudden danger, and in terror at it. That was what frightened me, that sudden knowledge. I came down, fearing I should be too late."

"I had a fright," she admitted; "but I don't see how you could know. I'm very sure I didn't cry out."

"No, I heard nothing, no sound at all. I just knew, and so I came to you as fast as I could. What was it that frightened you?"

"Nothing at all, I imagine. I was sitting here on the ledge, looking at that wonderful sky, and all at once I found I was growing afraid. I didn't know what it was about, at all. I suppose it was just because I was a little tired and had begun to realize that I was a long way from—home."

"It was probably a bear. If it was, we're in luck. I'll come back by and by and go hunting for him. But first, I'm going to take you—home."

She had heard the word before, but in what sense he was not entirely sure; and she had undoubtedly used it not more than half consciously. At any rate, when he said it now she flushed a little, and so did he, and the eyes, meeting, brightened suddenly.

Silently he turned away from her and began furling up his wings and she helped him, as she had helped him that other time when he had tried to convince her that he was not a dream.

When it was done, they set out slowly, in the deepening twilight, for the hut.

"It's very good of you to walk down here with me," she said, "you who could fly."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Red Guard Book.

By the time they had reached the headland, the white beach before them was enveloped in the sulphurous shadow of the cliff, and the little cluster of huts toward which they were trudging was hardly distinguishable. It was not until they had halved the distance that the girl made out the little plume of rose-colored smoke that floated above Philip's newly constructed chimney.

But the next instant he laid a hand upon her arm and, with the other, pointed imperatively down the beach toward the hut. "Whether you saw him before, or not," he said, "with a short, grim laugh, 'you can see him now.'"

Looking where he pointed, she saw a big, yellowish white, ungainly thing come lumbering round the corner of the hut, upon all fours.

"A bear," he said, "and a good big one. You're not to be afraid. This is really unfortified good luck."

"Aren't they dangerous, these polar bears?" she asked.

In his answering laugh she heard the ring of rising excitement. "I won't deny," he said, "that if I had my way about it, I'd have you safely shut up inside the hut there before I tried conclusions with him. Give me the revolver, and take care to keep out of the line of fire. If you see a chance to slip inside the hut, do it. And don't assume that dead until I tell you so. These polar bears have no nerves at all. You can't shock them. They don't stop until you have put their locomotor facilities completely out of business."

She was smiling when he handed him the revolver. "Here's luck," she said. "Don't be afraid for me."

Cayley smiled, too. Keep behind me, but not so far that you're in any danger of getting cut off in case I have to dance around him a little. There he's winded us already."

Cayley turned for a last look at her. He had slipped his bundled wings from his back and laid them on the ice. He was still smiling, but somewhat ironically. "I'm half afraid he'll run away," he said, "and half afraid he won't."

The next instant all doubt on that head was set at rest. The monster bowed and came lumbering toward them, pretty rapidly, across the ice.

Cayley advanced slowly to meet him, but not in a direct line. Instead, he bore off in a curve to the left. The girl understood the maneuver instantly, and, herself, set out handward at a brisk pace, moving in the arc of a circle, parallel to his but larger, in such a way as to keep the bear, Philip and herself, as all three moved in different directions, in a straight line.

They quivered round in this way, the bear swerving in well toward Philip, until all three were in a line, about equidistant from the hut. Philip and the bear, were, perhaps, a dozen paces apart. Without turning, he called over his shoulder to her, "Now run for it—for the hut. I'll keep him amused out here."

At the sound of his voice the bear rushed him, the girl had never before found anything so hard to do as to obey orders now. But she did obey and was running at top speed toward the open door of the hut when she heard Cayley fire for the first time. Just as she reached it, she heard his second shot. When she turned about, panting to observe the result of it, the two seemed to her to be at horribly close quarters. The bear, reared up on his hind legs, had just lunged forward.

He sprang back clear of the flashing scythes out of those terrible claws. A little to the girl's surprise and considerably to her alarm, he turned and went sprinting up the beach toward the hut at full speed, the bear wounded, but not in the least disabled, lumbering after him.

It takes a fast runner to outrun a bear, but Cayley did it. When he reached the foot of the tundra, the bear was 20 paces behind him. She saw him stop short, whirl round again and face his pursuer with a shout.

The bear also checked his speed and reared up once more, towering, upon his hind legs. Then Cayley fired twice, the shots coming so close together as to be hardly distinguishable. One or both of them took instantaneous effect. The great yellowish-white man tottered forward, and collapsed in a heap only a pace or two from where Philip was standing.

He waved his hand at the girl, and walked back for his wings. When she met him, half way up the beach, he was carefully taking the spent shells out of his revolver, one at a time, and depositing them in his pocket.

"No telling how they may prove useful," he commented, then, with a quick look into her face. "I hope you weren't frightened when you saw me run."

"I suppose I shouldn't have been, but I'll have to confess that I was. You weren't trying to get away from him, or you wouldn't have run in that direction. But it looked rather dreadful, just the same. Why did you do it?"

"We were too far down the beach, too near the water's edge before. It was too late to skin him and cut him up tonight, and I was afraid if a storm were to come up before morning, a really big storm, we might lose him. It was a lot easier to get him up the beach before I fired those last two shots than it would have been after."

I thought at first of running toward the hut. It occurred to me, only just in time, that there was no use in making an abattoir of our front yard."

They had reached the hut, and he finished speaking, they entered it. Even Philip caught his breath rather suddenly with that first glance at its transformed interior. The drift-wood fire, which glowed upon the hearth, filled the whole room with light, and bathed the walls and rafters with warm colors.

Here was their fortress—against the cold and the dark; a fortress, too, against despair. The rude hearth which he had built today was in fact their altar of hope.

The girl stood looking at it a moment in silence, her lips pressed tight together, one outstretched hand groping for the doorjamb behind her, as if she wanted the support of something. Even in this warm firelight she looked a little pale. By an evident effort of will she was breathing very deep and steadily. She did not try to speak.

Cayley understood well enough what it meant. This place that they had come back to for the night was home now, probably the last home she would ever have in the world. If one were to balance the chances fairly, its warmth and light and comparative comfort did more to enforce a realization of their tragic plight than anything before had done.

THE STAGE AND THE PLAYERS.

Carrie Webber, with "The Joy Rider."

THE SOISSON.

George Sidney Tonight.

"The Joy Rider," in which George Sidney (Burr 177) will appear at the Soisson the two tonight, is said to be a musical farce in the best expression of that term. Mr. Sidney is an unusual and painstaking comedian whose every move, gesture or facial expression is a signal of merriment and his past seven years as a musical star have been unusually successful. He is supported by Carrie Webber, the brilliant comedienne, and a selected cast of 50 singers and dancers beautifully trained. With a full load of scenery and electric effects. Secure your seats early. Both phones.

"The Girl in the Taxi" If you would rather promise to be amused, for "The Girl in the Taxi" is at last to be seen in this city, for an engagement of one night at the Soisson theatre, Wednesday, Jan. 18.

No other play of the season has been looked forward to with as much interest, probably because its visit has been so long deferred. This tragedy, however, cannot be blamed on the place unless it is to be criticized for being so good that Chicago and Boston held it in their midst for an entire season to the exclusion of all other cities. America was compelled to wait two years before "The Girl in the Taxi" was presented, owing to its phenomenal success in Paris and Berlin, in which two cities it secured immense hits and broke all records for attendance and box office receipts. It was booked for four weeks in Chicago, in the belief that a month would serve in that city. Instead it played to capacity business for five times four weeks and was taken away to Boston only because of contracts calling for its appearance in the latter city, which could not be broken.

JOHNSTOWN IS HERE TONIGHT.

Usually a Friday Light Attraction But Not This Week.

CENTRAL LEAGUE GAMES SCHEDULED THIS WEEK.

Monday—Homestead at McKeesport; South Side at Uniontown; Johnstown at Connellsville.
Tuesday—McKeesport at Johnstown.
Wednesday—Johnstown at South Side.
Thursday—Homestead at Uniontown; Connellsville at McKeesport.
Friday—Uniontown at Connellsville.
Saturday—Connellsville at Johnstown; Uniontown at South Side; McKeesport at Homestead.

Johnstown plays here this evening. In other games here the Jaws were Friday night attractions but this time they come at the beginning of the week. Their last appearance was a frost because they quit cold in the second half. The way they treated the Cokers last Thursday night at Johnstown may put some shivers into them. The other home game this week is with Uniontown on Friday and a record crowd is predicted.

The Cokers play at McKeesport Thursday and Johnstown Saturday, having a four game week. Captain Dirk gave the boys a rest Saturday following the hard game with South Side the night before but gave orders for practice this morning. Captain Kilde will continue the Kimmery policy of morning practice because he believes it keeps the boys in better shape. He will observe care that the team is not overtrained, which is why it is possible where so much work is required. The Dirk idea is to give the team just enough work to keep the men on edge without tiring them.

South Side defeated McKeesport 23 to 23 Saturday night. The Tubers made out a single left goal and that was by Swenson, utility man. Andy Sears' foul shooting kept the Tubers in the running but South Side was invincible on its own foot.

Homestead surprised Johnstown by defeating Forester's men 11 to 20 at Homestead. As reported exclusively in The Courier more than a week ago, the Young Americans will play in East Liberty for the balance of the season. The attendance at Homestead dropped off.

Mrs. Deffenbaugh Improving.
The condition of Mrs. W. S. Deffenbaugh, wife of the Superintendent of the local school system, who was operated on for appendicitis at the South Side hospital Thursday is improved today and her rapid recovery is looked for.

Gas Companies Active.
The Citizens Gas Company and the Somerset Gas Company are both seeking charters which will enable them to furnish artificial gas to Somerset. The necessity for two companies in the field puzzles some.

Out of Hospital.
Jesse Orndorff was discharged from the Cottage State hospital yesterday. The boy was being treated for burns. He became homesick and pined so for his parents that he was discharged.

Get Rid of Rheumatism.

It's an Easy Matter With Rheuma, the New Remedy That A. A. Clarke Guarantees.

Drive out the Uric Acid from the joints. Get every particle of this poisonous matter out of your system, and keep it out.

You can do it with Rheuma, a new scientific prescription that acts at once on kidneys, stomach, liver and blood; dissolves the Uric Acid and causes Rheumatic agony to vanish. Here's real proof:

"I am very thankful for Rheuma, which I began taking on Jan. 3, when I could not hold a pen. Now I can write. Then I could not walk; now I go down town and back and feel like another man. I am free from pain for the first time in three years." E. W. Rice, Troy, Pa., Jan. 22, 1910.

Services at the Big Tabernacle Sunday Attracted Large Audiences.

The evangelistic services yesterday at the tabernacle attracted large audiences from far and near. In the afternoon an audience of women completely filled the tabernacle. A choir of men under Mr. Mills' leadership led the singing, afterward going to the Reformed church where Mr. Mills conducted an interesting service. Evangelist Davis' address was similar to the one given to the women some time ago with new illustrations. The audience listened throughout intently and frequently manifested their approval of his utterance by applauding. In the evening Mrs. Mills conducted a service at the Baptist church for the boys and girls. The Reformed led the singing and the large audience was greatly interested in the talk given, the speaker using a number of candles of various colors and sizes from which she drew practical Christian lessons that the little ones will not easily forget. The people began coming at an early hour to the tabernacle and poured into it in a steady stream until all the seats were occupied and several hundred were compelled to stand. Among the selections by the choir which caught the fancy of the audience was "God Give Us Homes," Mr. Mills having the people sing the chorus again. Mr. Mills' solo "I'm a Subject of a King" was thrilling.

The subject of Evangelist Davis' sermon was "Law and Grace." It was a strong and clear presentation of the plan of salvation in which scripture, logic and humorous illustrations were effectively blended. His text was John 1:17, "For the Law Was Given by Moses, But Grace and Truth Came by Jesus Christ." Among other things he said: "God has dealt with the world in a special way in different ages which are clearly defined to the close student of the scriptures. Among these ages are the age of law and the age of grace. The age of law extended from the time of Moses up to the time of Christ. The age of grace began with Christ and extends to and includes the present time so that we are now living in the age of grace. Let us note the difference between law and grace. Law is a mere revelation of God's will while grace is a revelation of God's goodness. Law is God prohibiting and requiring while grace is God bestowing and bestowing. Under law the commandment is, do and thou shalt live. Under grace the commandment is, believe and thou shalt live. The law was a ministry of condemnation from beginning to end while grace is a ministry of forgiveness. Under the law the best man that ever lived is condemned while under grace the worst sinner is freely justified. Under law the

PUTS AN END TO INDIGESTION AND A SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH.

A Little Diapiesin Relieves Bad Stomach in Five Minutes.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapiesin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome your sour, gassy stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula, plainly printed on these boxes of Diapiesin. Diapiesin, then, you will readily see why it makes indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes, and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour, undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from indigestion and stomach trouble that they have almost made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe their case is one of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest. Instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which poisons the digestive tract and induces indigestion, heartburn, sour breath with mucous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Diapiesin.

The Dawson Public Schools Make A Good Showing in Fourth Month.

The fourth month's work in the schools of Dawson closed on Tuesday, January 10. The total number of pupils enrolled during the month was 143, and of this number 127 were in attendance each day.

There were 72 pupils who missed no days. In this respect No. 1 had 23, while No. 1 and No. 2 tied for second place, each having 19. The average percent of attendance was 95.

The following pupils missed no days: Room No. 1—Frank Barrett, Donald Hooton, Joseph Doerflinger, Leroy Haas, Ernest Hecklinger, Raymond Kuhnelt, J. H. Laughrey, Robert Steiner, Joseph Hill, Edward Stephens, Joseph Stephens, Vlado Haas, Mosey Crawford, Nellie Cowell, Daisy Haas, Nellie Nolan, Edna Newkirk, Margaret O'Brien, Laura Sheppard.

Room No. 2—Emerson Wingrove, Harold Cotton, Frank McGill, Harold Foreythe, Elmer Prineas, Grace Laugh-

As January is a month when this business gets ready to take count of stock on hand, we do much looking into corners getting out odds and ends and put little prices on these things to clear them out.

Everything else that doesn't belong to the following season is priced likewise for quick disposal. Sometimes, as in this instance particularly, at this every day, good the Year's front articles and wear things are sharply reduced, mainly to loosen the stock and also to bring purchasers who need other things they don't think of until those things come under their gaze.

We want you to see more than the little prices because other stores don't sell at their little prices, standard A1, highest class merchandise—and we price it every day.

Quality, more than price, counts here.

In closing a large number accepted the plan of salvation as presented. In response to the speaker's invitation, the pastor then gathered around the evangelist, and clasping each other's hands sang "Hail to the 'Tis That Binds." Pastor Deffenbaugh said among other things that expressed the feeling of the pastors toward the evangelist for the great work which had been done. The meetings will probably close some night this week, but as yet no date has been announced.

Yesterday the White Brigade under the direction of Evangelist Davis, gave an exhibition drill at the Armory to which the other members of the families, represented by the brigade, were invited guests. The brigade, after a drill of 100 strong, were also present and took part in the exhibition which was doubtless one of the prettiest of its kind that has been seen here. The girls wore pink sashes. The different movements were executed with a precision that called forth much enthusiastic applause. A sham battle and execution of two spies were realistic features of the performance. Following the drill a banquet was served at the Y. M. C. A. which the girls greatly enjoyed. A parade through the business streets attracted a large crowd and frequent applause.

A song service was held at the tabernacle which attracted a large audience.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, or upon them. Write without fear as with-out fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.
